Rebalance Rationale

Equity

- Global equities were maintained at neutral overall, amid concerns about higher inflation and slower growth stemming from heightened geopolitical tensions in the Middle East, as well as the potential for adverse revisions to earnings growth prospects
- Within equities, developed markets (DM) were upgraded to overweight, while emerging markets (EM) were downgraded to underweight
- U.S. equity market prospects remain constructive, supported by healthy earnings growth and the potential for increased capital investment and deregulation. However, equity markets may need to digest ongoing government policy uncertainty, challenging labour conditions, strained supply chains, and higher input costs linked to geopolitical developments
- Canada's economy remains vulnerable to poor housing affordability, an indebted consumer, and sensitivity to U.S. policy changes. The scope for additional monetary stimulus is diminishing, although this is partly offset by increased fiscal spending and selective deregulation in areas such as interprovincial trade. We believe an improved backdrop for the resource sector is partly offset by the recent outperformance of energy stocks, which may dampen future upside
- Europe continues to be affected by elevated geopolitical tensions, with developments involving Iran compounding disruptions from the ongoing conflict in Ukraine and subdued earnings growth relative to the rest of the world. At the same time, U.S. policy changes have also spurred rearmament and infrastructure spending initiatives in Europe, contributing to improved growth expectations; however, energy supply disruptions are likely to weigh on corporate and consumer confidence while putting upward pressure on inflation
- Earlier improvements in global economic growth have been offset by recent geopolitical developments and may pose headwinds for emerging markets, given their greater dependence on Middle Eastern hydrocarbons and the impact of a stronger U.S. dollar (USD)
- Japan's inflation remains elevated relative to historical norms, reinforcing expectations of further policy normalization by the Bank of Japan (BOJ), while economic forecasts continue to point to tepid growth, with fiscal stimulus helping to underpin activity. Geopolitical tensions are likely to weigh on the growth outlook through 2026

Cash

- Cash remains overweight, as it continues to provide a buffer against volatility. Although cash yields have declined as policy rates have moved lower, they still offer modest income with low risk, as well as optionality for future investment opportunities

- For the quarter ended June 30, 2026, AGF Elements Global Portfolio (Series MF) returned 15.1%, while the benchmark returned 17.3%.
- The Portfolio’s benchmark asset mix is 100% equities. The AGF Asset Allocation Committee (AAC) held a modest preference for U.S. equities during the second quarter. The AAC also maintained an overweight view on U.S. equities and cash.
- The Portfolio’s underperformance relative to the benchmark was due to allocation decisions which detracted, while selection decisions contributed.
- The Portfolio’s selection of AGF American Growth Fund, AGF Emerging Markets Fund and AGF Systematic Global Infrastructure ETF contributed to overall performance. On the other hand, selection of AGF Global Equity Fund, AGF Global Sustainable Growth Equity Fund and AGF U.S. Sector Fund detracted from relative results.
- From an absolute return perspective, AGF American Growth Fund contributed to performance followed by AGF Emerging Markets Fund. On the other hand, AGF US Market Neutral Anti-Beta CAD-Hedged ETF was a significant detractor from relative results during the quarter, followed by AGF Global Real Assets Fund.
- The Portfolio was neutral Canadian, European and Japanese equities relative to the benchmark and underweight Emerging Markets and Asia ex-Japan equities. The Portfolio was overweight U.S. equities and cash during the quarter.
- The Portfolio maintained exposure to alternative funds during the quarter.

All World Tax Advantage Group is a mutual fund corporation that currently offers approximately 20 different classes of securities. In addition to fund diversification by investment style, geography and market capitalization, a key benefit of investing in any of the classes within the group is the possibility of sharing incurred expenses (and losses) of the combined structure, potentially offsetting income earnings to minimize chance of a dividend declaration. While the articles of AGF All World Tax Advantage Group Limited provide authority to make distributions out of capital and AGF All World Tax Advantage Group Limited intends both to calculate capital in the manner contemplated by the corporate statute for corporations that are not mutual fund corporations and only to declare distributions out of capital if there is sufficient capital attributable to a series, no definitive case law exists to confirm that a mutual fund corporation may make distributions of capital and how they are to be calculated. Further, no advance income tax ruling has been requested or obtained from Canada Revenue Agency, nor is AGF aware of any published advance income tax ruling or the possibility of obtaining such a ruling regarding the characterization of such distributions or the calculation of capital for such purposes.
